1 Plaintiffs' case in its entirety. See, e.g., Herman Family Revocable Trust v. Teddy Bear, et al., 2 254 F.3d 801 (9th Cir. 2001).

3 Alternatively, and should the Court determine that it somehow retains jurisdiction over 4 Plaintiffs' supplemental State-law causes of action, even though it is still early in the action 5 and Plaintiffs have undertaken no activity implicating this Court, other than the filing of the 6 complaint, summary judgment must be entered on these same bases as to the Plaintiffs' Third 7 and Fifth Causes of Action seeking injunctive relief under California's Unfair Competition 8 Law³ and California Health & Safety Code § 19955.

9 The reasons for this rest on three factors. The first is that injunctive relief to require 10 compliance with the requirements of the ADA is the only relief that could be afforded 11 Plaintiffs by this Court on the First Cause of Action since, assuming they obtained success on 12 the merits, compensatory or other monetary damages are not authorized by the ADA.⁴ The 13 same is also true relative to the California Unfair Competition Law⁵ and California Health & 14 Safety Code § 19955.⁶ Second, through efforts that began before the filing of the Complaint, 15 Defendant has brought Peachy Canyon Cellars into compliance with the ADA and all relevant 16 State laws. Third and as a result, Plaintiffs lack "any reality of the threat of repeated injury"

17 ³ Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq.

18 ⁴ See 42 U.S.C. §§ 2000a-3(a)(authorizing only actions for injunctive relief) and 19 12188(a)(1)(same); 28 C.R.D. §§ 36.501 and .505; Pickern v. Holiday Quality Foods, Inc., 20 293 F.3d 1133, 1136 (9th Cir. 2002)("Damages are not allowable to individuals....")

21 ⁵ See Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 (limiting private remedies to equitable relief); Brown 22 v. Allstate Ins. Co., 17 F.Supp.2d 1134, 1140 (S.D.Cal. 1998); Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. v.
23 Superior Court, 211 Cal.App.3d 758, 774, 259 Cal.Rptr. 789 (1989)(compensatory damages are 24 not recoverable).

25 ⁶ See Cal. Health & Safety Code § 19953 (providing the remedy for a violation of § 19955 26 is limited to "an action to enjoin the violation")' Botosan v. Fitzhugh, 13 F.Supp.2d 1047, 1052 27 (S.D.Cal. 1998); Donald v. Café Royale, Inc., 218 Cal.App.3d 198, 183, 266 Cal.Rptr. 804 (1990).

1 required for standing under Article III of the United States Constitution or an actual "Case" or 2 "Controversy" since Defendants' purported violation of the ADA has been permanently 3 remedied and is thus not "capable of repetition." In either instance, the result is a loss of the 4 statutory basis for this Court's original jurisdiction and, resultantly, of any jurisdiction for the 5 Court to consider the supplemental State-law causes of action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367(c)

6 II STATEMENT OF UNDISPUTED MATERIAL FACTS

- 7 1. Plaintiff Jarek Molski is a person who claims physical disabilities. Complaint, ¶ 2.
- 8 2. Plaintiff "Disability Rights Enforcement, Education Services: Helping You Help 9 Others," is a California public benefit corporation whose membership is 10 purportedly composed of, among others, persons with physical disabilities.
11 Complaint, ¶ 6.
- 12 3. Defendant Peachy Canyon Winery (incorrectly sued as Peach Canyon Cellars) is a 13 vineyard and winery, duly licensed by the California Alcoholic Beverage Control 14 Board, with a Tasting Room located in the unincorporated area of Templeton, 15 County of San Luis Obispo, State of California. The tasting room is open to 16 members of the public during designated hours for purposes of such members of the 17 public tasting wines produced by Peachy Canyon and purchasing the same.
18 Affidavit of Douglas P. Beckett, ¶ 2 (hereinafter "D.Beckett Aff.").
- 19 4. Defendants Douglas P. Beckett and Nancy L. Beckett are trustees of the Defendant 20 Beckett Family Trust which is the owner and operator of Peachy Canyon Winery.
21 D. Beckett, Aff., ¶ 3.
- 22 5. On or about August 9, 2003, Plaintiff Molski has averred he visited Peachy Canyon 23 Cellars. Complaint, ¶ 19.
- 24 6. At the time of his purported visit, Plaintiff Molski alleges that certain architectural 25 barriers existed at the winery and its grounds that denied him the proper and legally 26 required access to a public accommodation consisting of the following: 27 "a. lack of handicapped accessible parking signage;

- 1 b. lack of disabled van accessible parking stall(s);
- 2 c. lack of accessible ramp to the outside patio;
- 3 d. lack of a handicapped-accessible unisex public restroom;
- 4 e. lack of accessible wine-tasting/retail counter (the existing counter was too
- 5 high);
- 6 f. lack of accessible ramp to the gazebo;
- 7 g. lack of accessible paths of travel to the picnic area....”

8 Complaint, ¶ 24.

9 5. On or about September 2, 2003, Plaintiffs filed the instant lawsuit without 10 providing Defendants with any prior notice of the alleged architectural barriers 11 specified above.

12 D. Beckett Aff., ¶ 4.

13 6. By letter dated September 26, 2003, served with the Complaint, Thomas 14 Frankovich, Esq., Plaintiff’s attorney of record, gave notification of the filing 15 of the lawsuit and service of the complaint to Defendant Nancy L. Beckett.
16 Affidavit of Nancy L. Beckett, ¶ 3 (“hereinafter N. Beckett Aff”).

17 7. In the September 26, 2003 letter, Mr. Frankovich, on behalf of his clients, 18 stated:

19 “We believe the following architectural barriers could be addressed/removed within 20 ninety (90) days:

- 21 a. Provide van accessible parking – your current space, partially painted and partially
- 22 signed may not be wide enough. The van stall might have to be moved;
- 23 b. Provide a van accessible parking sign and tow-a-way sign;
- 24 c. Install grab bars in the restroom and set the elements (i.e. toilet paper holder) in the
- 25 correct place and at the correct height;
- 26 d. Provide ramps to the rear patio and gazebo;
- 27 e. Provide accessible pathways to the picnic area;

28

1 f. lower the wine tasting counter (a portion of 6 feet in length, and no higher than 2 36")” N. Beckett Aff., ¶ 3.

3 8. In his September 26, 2003 letter, Mr. Frankovich also opined to Defendant 4 Beckett that “[w]e do not believe you have any bona fide defense to your 5 continuing obligation to identify and remove architectural barriers...,” that “[w]e 6 do not want to see you waste your money on needless litigation,” and that if 7 Peachy Canyon Cellars were to agree to make the changes within a reasonable 8 time all that would be necessary to end the litigation would be to enter into a 9 settlement agreement paying Mr. Frankovich’s attorneys fees and paying 10 Plaintiff some unspecified amount of damages.

11 9. All structural requirements of the ADA have been met by Peachy Canyon 12 Cellars. Affidavit of Craig Smith, ¶ 4.

13 10. Since the filing of the complaint in this action, Plaintiffs have engaged in no 14 discovery and filed no motions or other documents with the Court for its 15 consideration and decision. Affidavit of Jere N. Sullivan, ¶ 2.

16 III ARGUMENT

17 A. The Standards For Consideration Of A Motion For Summary 18 Judgment And To Dismiss, Respectively

19 20 Summary judgment should be granted if there is no genuine issue as to any 21 material fact when the evidence and all justifiable inferences are viewed in the light 22 most favorable to the non-moving party and the moving party is entitled to relief as a 23 matter of law. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 371, 323, 106 S.Ct. 1548, 91 L.Ed.2d 24 265 (1986); Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 251, 106 S.Ct. 2505, 91 25 L.Ed.2d 202 (1986). The court must undertake a dual inquiry into the genuineness and 26 materiality of any purported factual issues. Indeed, it is well-settled that the duty of the 27 Court is to scrutinize the evidence and reasonable inferences to determine whether there

1 is sufficient probative evidence to permit “a finding in favor of the opposing party based 2 on more than mere speculation, conjecture, or fantasy.” O.S.C. Corp. v. Apple 3 Computer, Inc., 792 F.2d 1464, 1467 (9th Cir. 1986)(quoting Barnes v. Arden Mayfair, 4 Inc., 759 F.2d 676, 681 (9th Cir. 1985). As a result, where the record taken as a whole 5 could not lead a rational trier of fact to find for the non-moving party, disposition by 6 summary judgment is appropriate. See Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. v. Zenith 7 Radio Corp., 474 U.S. 574, 586-87, 106 S.Ct. 1348, 89 L.Ed.2d 538 (1986)(“When the 8 moving party has carried its burden under Rule 56(c), its opponent must do more than 9 simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts Where 10 the record taken as a whole could not lead a rational trier of fact to find for the non-11 moving party, there is no ‘genuine issue for trial.’”). In adjudging a motion for 12 summary judgment, it is not the court’s role to weigh the evidence. Instead, its sole 13 function is to decide whether there exists a genuine issue for trial. Anderson v. Liberty 14 Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. at 249, 106 S.Ct. 2505.

15 Under this approach, this Court should grant summary judgment to Defendants.
16 Since the lack of standing due to the absence of a redressible injury-in-fact or an 17 absence of a “Case” or “Controversy” rendering the case moot is clear and 18 unmistakable, no genuine issue of material fact exists. Dismissal of the remainder of the 19 complaint is also required since, without the source of its original jurisdiction to 20 entertain the causes of action, the Court simply lacks jurisdiction to even address the 21 supplemental State-law claims.

22 B. Plaintiffs Lack Standing And Otherwise Fail To 23 Present A Case Or Controversy Relative To Their 24 ADA Cause Of Action Since An Injunction May Not, 25 As A Matter Of Law Or Fact, Issue Against 26 Defendants

1 Defendants have complied with the structural requirements of the ADA.
2 Undisputed Mat. Fact No. 9; Smith Aff., ¶ 4. The elements of that compliance – duly marked 3 van accessible parking for the disabled, restrooms with metal bars and re-situated elements for 4 use by the disabled, ramps to the patio and gazebo, a lowered tasting room bar, and accessible 5 pathways to the picnic area – deprive Plaintiffs of any “reality of the threat of repeated injury” 6 under the ADA. In doing so, it deprives Plaintiffs of any standing to seek injunctive relief or 7 any justiciable cause of action over which the Court has jurisdiction.

8 The underlying law that governs a determination of whether standing exists is 9 reasonably well-established. Article III, ¶ 2 of the United States Constitution restricts federal 10 courts to deciding “Cases” or “Controversies” and thus imposes what the Supreme Court has 11 described as the “irreducible constitutional minimum of standing,” – injury in fact, causation, 12 and redressibility. Lujan v. National Wildlife Fed’n, 504 U.S. 555, 560, 112 S.Ct. 2130, 119 13 L.Ed.2d 351 (1992). To establish Article III standing, a plaintiff must therefore allege, and 14 ultimately prove, that he has suffered an injury in fact that is fairly traceable to the challenged 15 action of the defendant, and which is likely to be redressed by the requested relief. See Steel 16 Co. v. Citizens For A Better Environment, 523 U.S. 83, 103, 118 S.Ct. 1003, 140 L.Ed.2d 210 17 (1998); Bennett v. Spear, 520 U.S. at 162, 117 S.Ct. 1154 (1997). These core requirements are 18 designed to ensure that the exercise of federal jurisdiction is consistent with separation of 19 powers and limited to those suits “traditionally thought to be capable of resolution through the 20 judicial process.” Valley Forge Christian College v. Americans United for Separation of 21 Church & State, 454 U.S. 464, 472, 102 S.Ct. 752, 70 L.Ed.2d 33 (1982)(quoting Flast v.
22 Cohen, 392 U.S. 93, 97, 88 S.Ct. 1942, 20 L.Ed.2d 947 (1968).

23 To qualify as a constitutionally sufficient injury-in-fact, the asserted injury must be 24 “concrete and particularized” as well as “actual or imminent, not ‘conjectural’ or 25 ‘hypothetical.’” Lujan, 504 U.S. at 560, 112 S.Ct. 2130. Standing must, of course, exist 26 separately for each form of relief sought. City of Los Angeles v. Lyons, 461 U.S. 95, 109, 103
27 S.Ct. 1660, 75 L.Ed.2d 675 (1983). The “actual or threatened injury” required by Article III

1 may “exist solely by virtue of ‘statutes creating legal rights, the invasion of which creates 2 standing....” Warth v. Seldin, 422 U.S. 490, 500, 95 S.Ct. 2197, 45 L.Ed.2d 343 (1975).
3 However, even in that instance, the “injury” must be redressible by the relief sought. Steel Co., 4 523 U.S. at 103-04, 118 S.Ct. 1003. In fact, to support standing, particularly standing to obtain 5 injunctive relief, the plaintiff’s injury must be actual and imminent to ensure that the court 6 avoids deciding a purely hypothetical case in which the projected harm will ultimately fail to 7 occur. Lujan, 504 U.S. at 564-65 n. 2, 112 S.Ct. 2130 (noting that “[a]lthough imminence is 8 concededly somewhat an elastic concept, it cannot be stretched beyond its purpose, which is to 9 ensure that the alleged injury is not too speculative for Article III purposes – that the injury is 10 certainly impending”(internal quotation marks omitted). In other words, “Supreme Court 11 precedent teaches us that the injury in fact requirement ... is qualitative, not quantitative, in 12 nature. Ass’n of Com. Orgs. For Reform Now v. Fowler, 178 F.3d 350, 357-58 (5th Cir. 1999).

13 Standing and justiciability must, of course, exist throughout the course of the litigation 14 and, assuming that they existed at the time of the filing of the Complaint, they can be lost in the 15 course of litigation by the occurrence of events that change the factual dynamics. See, e.g., 16 Arizonians for Official English v. Arizona, 520 U.S. 43, 68 n. 22, 117 S.Ct. 1055, 137 L.Ed.2d 17 170 (1997) (“requisite personal interest that must exist at the commencement of the litigation 18 (standing... [must] continue throughout its existence (mootness)”), quoting United States 19 Parole Comm’n v. Geraghty, 445 U.S. 388, 397, 100 S.Ct. 1202, 63 L.Ed.2d 479 (1980); Blair 20 v. Shanahan, 38 F.3d 1514, 1518 (9th Cir. 1994)(“Article III of the Constitution requires that 21 there be a live case or controversy at the time that a federal court decides the case....”), quoting 22 Burke v. Barnes, 439 U.S. 361, 363, 107 S.Ct. 737, 93 L.Ed.2d 732 (1987).

23 That the Plaintiffs have lost their standing to seek injunctive relief in the course of this 24 litigation – due to Defendants’ post-filing compliance with the requirements of the ADA – is 25 clear from application of City of Los Angeles v. Lyons, and Steel Co. v. Citizens For A Better 26 Environment, 523 U.S. 83, 118 S.Ct. 1003. Indeed, Lyons clearly mandates this conclusion 27 relative to Plaintiffs’ request for injunctive relief (the only relief available to them under the 28

1 ADA and, as noted earlier, various of the State laws upon which they base their supplemental 2 causes of action). First, it is clear that “[p]ast exposure to illegal conduct does not in itself 3 show a present case or controversy regarding injunctive relief ... if unaccompanied by any 4 continuing, present adverse effects.” Lyons, 461 U.S. at 102, 103 S.Ct. 1660 (quoting O’Shea 5 v. Littleton, 414 U.S. 488, 493-94, 94 S.Ct. 669, 38 L.Ed.2d 674 (1974)). Rather, the injury-in-6 fact at which the equitable relief is aimed to redress must be “real and immediate, not 7 ‘conjectural’ or hypothetical.” Ibid. As in Lyons where the Supreme Court held that standing 8 to seek the requested injunction depended (and was defeated by) the question of whether Lyons 9 was “likely to suffer future injury from the use of the chokeholds by police officers,” [id. At 10 105, 103 S.Ct. 1660], the situation here is whether Plaintiffs are likely to again find themselves 11 unable, should they or any disabled person every visit Peachy Canyon Winery, to equally avail 12 themselves of the facility because of the absence of ADA “structure” or the presence of ADA 13 “barriers.” Clearly they are not. See Smith Aff., ¶ 4. Thus, the injunctive, relief they seek can 14 in no way redress their past injury or prevent any imminent future injury. They thus lack 15 standing.

16 Looked at from another perspective, albeit one reaching the same result, the Plaintiffs’ 17 ADA cause of action is moot and, hence, not justiciable due to the absence of any “Case” or 18 “Controversy.” Friends of the Earth, Inc. v. Laidlaw Envtl. Servs. (TOC), Inc., 528 U.S. 167, 19 120 S.Ct. 693, 145 L.Ed.2d 610 (2000)(mootness, like standing, is a jurisdictional issue derived 20 from Article III’s requirement of “case” or “controversy”). Because an ongoing violation is 21 needed to, for instance, obtain an injunction, the mootness doctrine serves the purpose of 22 weeding out those cases in which a live controversy no longer exists. Application of that 23 doctrine is, however, stringent in a situation such as that present here. It is settled that “a 24 defendant’s voluntary cessation of a challenged practice does not deprive a federal court of its 25 power to determine the legality of that practice.” City of Mesquite v. Aladdin’s Castle, Inc., 26 455 U.S. 283, 289, 102 S.Ct. 1070, 71 L.Ed.2d 152 (1982). Otherwise, “the courts would be 27 compelled to leave [t]he defendant ... free to return to his old ways.” Id. At 289 n. 10, 102

28

1 S.Ct. 1070 (quoting United States v. W.T. Grant Co., 345 U.S. 629, 632, 73 S.Ct. 894, 97 L.Ed.
2 1309 (1953)). Thus, the applicable standard for determining whether mootness exists because 3 of a defendant's voluntary conduct is: "A case might become moot if subsequent events make 4 it absolutely clear that the allegedly wrongful behavior could not reasonably be expected to 5 recur." United States v. Concentrated Phosphate Export Assn., 393 U.S. 199, 201, 89 S.Ct.
6 361, 21 L.Ed.2d 344 (1968).

7 That is the situation here. There is no way in which the Plaintiffs, who do after all bear 8 the burden of establishing justiciability, [see, e.g., Powers v. Eichen, 229 F.3d 1249 (9th Cir.
9 2000)], can establish any means by which Defendants' "allegedly wrongful behavior" could 10 reasonably be expected to recur. After all, permanent fixtures to the realty were installed at 11 great cost to Defendants and there is absolutely no evidence of any lack of good faith by the 12 Defendants. Indeed, there is ample evidence establishing the contrary. The Ninth Circuit 13 reached a similar conclusion in Dufresne v. Veneman, 114 F.3d 952 (9th Cir. 1997), a case 14 involving a challenge under the ADA to aerial spraying of pesticides to combat "Medflies." 15 The Court found that the "[p]laintiffs' claims for injunctive relief have been rendered moot by 16 a positive turn of events: The Medfly is considered eradicated in the State of California." Id.
17 at 954. The Court rejected the plaintiffs' argument that mootness was overcome because "there 18 is some possibility in future spraying," because 19 "this possibility is too remote to preserve a live case or controversy. In Mayfield 20 v. Dalton, 109 F.3d 1423 (9th Cir. 1997), two servicemen seeking to challenge a 21 military policy [were] separated from active duty before we decided the appeal.

22 They argued their claims were not moot because they could 'still ... be required 23 to return to active duty in an emergency situation.' Id. at 1425. We held that 24 because 'the recall could happen only at some indefinite time in the future and 25 then only upon the occurrence of future events now unforeseeable,' the claims 26 were moot. Id. As in that case, "' such speculative contingencies afford no basis 27 for our passing on the substantive issues presented.' Id."(Citations omitted)

1 The Plaintiffs' claims for injunctive relief are thus moot and, accordingly, Plaintiffs 2 have failed to maintain the requisite case or controversy needed by this Court to maintain its 3 original jurisdiction of the cause.

5 Suggest That This Court Lacks Jurisdiction Of 6 The Subject Matter Due To Plaintiffs' Lack Of 7 Standing And Must Thus Dismiss The Supplemental 8 Causes Of Action

9 Once it is determined that Plaintiffs' ADA claim is non-justiciable, in that Plaintiffs lack 10 standing to seek (or their claim is moot for) the only substantive remedy allowed under the 11 ADA (injunctive relief),⁷ it necessarily follows that the Court is deprived of jurisdiction over the 12 supplemental State law claims of the remaining five (5) causes of action. 28 U.S.C. § 1367, 13 which governs federal court jurisdiction over "pendent" state-law claims, provides that

14 ⁷ As a general rule, a plaintiff who prevails on the ADA claim could be entitled to an award 15 of attorney's fees. It is well-settled, however, that the presence of such a remedy would not 16 provide the requisite injury-in-fact needed to establish standing to maintain a cause of action 17 injunctive relief. See, e.g., Steel Co., 523 U.S. at 105-109 and n. 9, 118 S.Ct. 1003 ("The litigation 18 must give the plaintiff some other benefit besides reimbursement of costs that a byproduct of the 19 litigation itself. An 'interest in attorney's fees is ... insufficient to create an Article III case or 20 controversy where none exists on the merits of the underlying claim.'") Of course, attorneys fees 21 are not available in this action should the court grant summary judgment for Defendant and 22 dismiss the action since Plaintiffs would then not be the "prevailing party" in fact or to the extent 23 that it could claim they were the "catalyst" for Defendants' compliance with the ADA. See 24 Buckhannon Board v. West Virginia D.H.H.R., 532 U.S. 598, 121 S.Ct. 1835, 149 L.Ed.2d 855 25 (2001).

1 “in any civil action in which the district courts have original jurisdiction, the 2 district courts shall have supplemental jurisdiction over all claims that are so 3 related to claims in the action within such original jurisdiction that they form 4 part of the same case or controversy under Article III”

5 28 U.S.C. § 1367(a)(West. Supp. 2004). Under § 1367(c)(3), “the district court may decline to 6 exercise supplemental jurisdiction over a claim under subsection (a) if – the district court has 7 dismissed all claims over which it has original jurisdiction.” That, according to controlling 8 Ninth Circuit precedent, also includes where summary judgment has been granted as to the 9 original jurisdiction claim.

10 Herman Family Revocable Trust v. Teddy Bear, 254 F.3d 802 (9th Cir. 2001) is 11 controlling as the need for this Court to dismiss all of Plaintiffs’ supplemental causes of action 12 once it loses its original ADA jurisdiction. In that case original jurisdiction was based on 13 admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, 28 U.S.C. § 1333. The district court, even though it 14 determined no such jurisdiction existed since “[c]ontracts for the sale of a slip are not maritime 15 and admiralty jurisdiction does not apply,” [id. at 804], did not dismiss the pendent claims.
16 Instead, it continued on to determine the merits of the supplemental State-law claims. The 17 Court of Appeal reversed, holding that the plain language of Section 1367 18 “makes clear that supplemental jurisdiction may only be invoked when the 19 district court has a hood of original jurisdiction on which to hang it. ...

20 Without the hood of admiralty jurisdiction – the basis for original jurisdiction – 21 the district court had no power under either § 1367 or Article III of the 22 Constitution to adjudicate any claims in the lawsuit.” (Emphasis in original; 23 citations omitted)

24 Clearly, a dismissal on the grounds alleged in Defendants’ motion does not qualify for the 25 exception to the rule as enunciated in Herman Family Trust: where the court has ruled on the 26 merits of cause of action giving rise to original jurisdiction, it may, in its discretion, reach the 27 merits of the supplemental claims:

28

1 "If the district court dismisses all federal claims on the merits, it has discretion 2 under § 1367 to adjudicate the remaining claims; if the court dismisses for lack 3 of subject matter jurisdiction, it has no discretion and must dismiss all claims."

4 Id., at 606.

5 In the absence of original jurisdiction because the Plaintiffs simply have no standing to 6 maintain their ADA cause of action, the result must perforce be dismissal of all supplemental 7 claims pursuant to Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(h)(3) ("Whenever it appears by suggestion of the parties or 8 otherwise that the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject matter, the court shall dismiss the 9 action."). That suggestion now having been made by Defendants, the Court should dismiss the 10 State-law supplemental causes of action.

11 D. In The Event That Plaintiffs' Supplemental State
12 Law Claims Are Not Dismissed, Summary Judgment
13 Is Appropriate As To The Third And Fifth Causes Of Action Due
14 To The Nonjusticiability

15 In the untoward event that this Court does not dismiss the remainder of the Complaint 16 for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, summary judgment should be entered for Defendants as 17 to the Third and Fifth Causes of Action, respectively, for the same reasons it should be granted 18 as to the ADA cause of action.

19 First and with regard to Plaintiffs' Fifth Cause of Action for equitable relief for 20 purported violation of California's Unfair Competition Law, California Bus. & Prof. Code §
21 17203, like the ADA, limits private remedies to equitable relief. Brown v. Allstate Ins. Co., 22 supra; Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. v. Superior Court, supra (compensatory damages are not 23 awardable). Since no basis for entry of an injunction exists, no claim has been stated upon 24 which relief can be granted due to the lack of standing or mootness.

25 Second, the same result obtains to Plaintiffs' Third Cause of Action for purported 26 violation of California Health & Safety Code § 19953. As with the ADA, the remedy for a 27

1 violation of §19955 is limited to “an action to enjoin the violation.” See, Botosan v. Fitzhugh, 2 supra; Donald v. Café Royale, Inc., supra.

3 V. Conclusion

4 For the reasons stated above and in the accompanying motion and affidavits as well as the 5 record as a whole, Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment should be granted and, 6 concomitantly, the Court should accept Defendants’ suggestion that the Court lacks jurisdiction 7 over the subject matter and dismiss the Defendants’ supplemental State-law claims pursuant to 8 28 U.S.C. § 1367.

9 Respectfully submitted,
